To create an interactive form I had to follow these steps.

First I had to create an HTML form with inputs for Name, Email, and Topic. Then I had to create a PHP script that will handle the form submission. Then I had to validate the form input using PHP's built-in functions. If the form input is valid, it will display a success message if not it will display error message. To do that I had to create files in PHP to fulfill those attribution.
